The new Mameluke Sultan Baybars (1260-1277), a man of great ability and vigour, set about a war of attrition against the Latin Kingdom.

Pope Clement invited the friar Roger Bacon to write down his thoughts on the Calendar.
He worked furiously to prepare a series of treatises that were highly critical of the church but he finished them just as Pope Clement died.
The Franciscans eventually imprisoned
him for his heretical tendencies.

Orogen, Pamphilus, and Eusebius were all residents of Caesarea.

By end of Byzantine period it had a library of 30,000 volumes.

Caesarea was razed to the ground by the Mameluke Sultan BAYBARS in 1265.
